HAPPENINGS IN BRIEF FROM OLD WORLD TOLD BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON, Nov. 9.—All battleship building records are to be beaten by the British navy if the plans of construction of the latest dreadnought are carried out.

The new vessel is ordered to be ready for launching five months after the laying of the first keel plates.

Somewhat of a sensation was caused at the Portsmouth when it was officially announced immediately after the launching of the Iron Duke that the keel plates of the super-dreadnought which is to follow were to be laid the next Monday. In recent years it has been the practice to allow two or three months to intervene between the launching of a new ship and the laying down of another.

It is said that promises have been made to the admiralty that the new ship will be ready for launching within the five months and she will be ready for service within one year, thus beating the record of the original dreadnought by two months.

It is also claimed that the new ship will be as great departure from prevailing types as the dreadnought was from its predecessors. Provisions for oil fuel will be made in the new vessel and she will be armored to resist air attacks.

The United States will probably possess the oldest painting on canvas in the world in a short time.

The picture, which was discovered by Robert de Rustafjaell of Luxor, Egypt, is about 3500 years old and it is executed in wonderfully bright colors on well-preserved cloth. It belongs to the period when art in Egypt had reached its zenith and the figures in it are not nearly so stiff as the usual rock paintings ornamenting the interior of Egyptian tombs.

Rustafjaell is associated with an English company engaged in agriculture in upper Egypt and all of his spare time is devoted to archaeology. Besides the painting, he has uncovered some valuable papyri and the largest collection ever made of Egyptian flint instruments.

Before he left Luxor with the painting, an American traveler offered the finder a large sum for the work, but at that time it was determined to keep it for his own collection and refused to part with it. Since his return, however, the offers have been raised to such a figure that he has consented to negotiate for its sale. Rustafjaell declares that the most tempting offers have been made by the London agents of American collectors, and he feels sure that the painting will be sent across the Atlantic.

The suffragettes are pursuing constitutional as well as militant methods of gaining their ends. They are about to present a petition to the house of commons requesting parliament to enfranchise the women of Great Britain. This is signed by the representatives of the leading women's organizations of Australia.

The petition for this action on the ground of the success which has attended similar action in Australia and on the further ground that Australian women removing to England are humiliated by being disfranchised.

A mysterious woman is sought by the English probate court in an effort to prove the death of an English banker, who, after disappearing on the eve of his wedding day, is alleged to have died on board a yacht belonging to the American.

The court has been for the fourth time asked to presume the death of William Robertson Lidderdale, formerly manager of a bank in Linchester.

On January 8, 1892, Lidderdale, on the eve of his marriage to Miss Elizabeth Chapman, in whose favor he had made a will, left for London after drawing $5000 from his private banking account. According to a letter received from him on the following day by Miss Chapman, an alibi ing at Paddington station he had met Miss Vining, an old love. Nothing more was heard of Lidderdale until February 10, 1892, when the following notice appeared in the obituary column of a London newspaper:

"Lidderdale—On January 30, on Miss R. A. H. Vining's yacht Foresight, William Robertson Lidderdale of Linchester. The result of an accident on January 8 in alighting from a carriage in motion."

Subsequently Miss Chapman received a letter containing $2500 in bank notes, some trinkets and some of Miss Vining's visiting cards. On one of the latter in Lidderdale's handwriting was written, "Was true to you."

"It has been suggested that Miss Vining never existed, and until the present hearing no proof of this fact has been advanced. A director in Lidderdale's bank now comes forward with the statement that he knew Miss Vining, who was a strikingly beautiful woman about 40 years of age. Her full name was Miss Beatrice Alice Hasledean Vining. She had no fixed abode, but was an American citizen. She evidently spent most of her time traveling on the yacht Foresight, which was never registered with Lloyds, but which witnesses have described as having been anchored off Westgate in 1890.

The judge said he believed there was a Miss Vining and expressed the hope that through the numbers on the bank notes some trace of her or the missing man might be found in America.

The case has been adjourned in the hope that the identity of the woman of mystery and her equally mysterious yacht may be established.

Don't you think that the store that's paying for publicity in the Bonanza, is apt to have a reason for wanting it—just as the store that is not advertised may have reasons for avoiding publicity?

If you "Keep Boarders" at all, why not keep enough boarders to make it pay? A small campaign of classified advertising in the Bonanza will keep you busy.

NO REASON FOR IT

YOU ARE SHOWN A WAY OUT

There can be no reason why any reader of this who suffers the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the pains and dangers of kidney ills will fail to heed the word of a resident of this locality who has found relief. The following is convincing proof.

S. K. Barber, 624 Mill st., Reno, Nev., says: "For some time my kidneys were weak and the kidney secretions were so frequent in passage that I was obliged to arise many times during the night. I lost much rest and my health became all run down. I suffered from pain and weakness in the small of my back, and I was in pretty bad shape when a friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, saying that they had practically cured him of a similar trouble. In less than a week I felt better and my kidneys are now strong and my back does not bother me. The statement I gave publicly recommending Doan's Kidney Pills some years ago still holds good. This remedy helped me greatly and I am glad to let other kidney sufferers know about it."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. 9-adv

Col. Roosevelt Received $1 A Word For His African Hunting Stories

That was a high rate to pay even a very distinguished author. But—to a limited extent—you may earn a higher rate of compensation than that for your own writing.

If, for example, you write a 10-word "situation wanted" ad for the Bonanza, and it finds you a position paying $500 a year more than you've been earning—how much "per word" have you earned as an "author?"

Or, suppose that a 10-word "help wanted" ad would secure an employee for you, whose services would be worth twice as much as you'll pay in salary or wages. Wouldn't "writing" of that sort stamp you as a high-priced author?

In writing ads that will sell your real estate to the right buyer—or any property which you want to sell to the people to whom it will be worth most—you may earn, with your pen, a far higher rate than $1 per word.
